

Global Life Science Partnering Conference

In its 8th Year, the Biocom Global Life Science Partnering Conference is an exclusive partnering forum that provides senior executives, bankers, venture capitalists, and business development professionals from the leading pharmaceutical and biotech companies to network and do business with one another from around the globe.

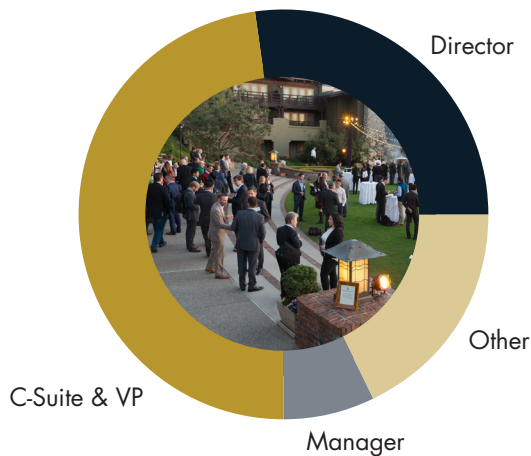

The partnering conference and the relationships you build promise to be fruitful for your business ventures this year and for many years to come. We are excited by the prospect of continuing an annual bio-pharma partnering conference that brings together leading deal makers and emerging biotechs from around the world, while providing a local San Diego venue to showcase the impressive accomplishments and progress taking place in one of the top biotech hubs in the world.

“Presenting at Biocom this year helped put Forge on the radar of several investors seeking to put money to work in the antibiotic space. The conference not only gave me the opportunity to meet the interested investors face-to-face but also gave me a platform to describe our funding strategy and growth trajectory, which gave us additional momentum leading to upsizing our Series A round. In fact, after my presentation multiple investors that were ‘circling the hoop’ were now ready to jump into the game and asked if they could participate in the Series A financing.”
